Dear Mr Weeks

I would like to call your attention to the Binding and Re-Binding of Public Library Books, as we have made a specialty of this class of work. They being more used than other books (and sometimes abused), it becomes necessary to employ other and better methods of Binding and Re-Binding.

We sew all our Books with very strong thread on Tapes and Linen joints, at both beginning and end, making this the strongest part of the book, where other methods are weakest and give out first.

Our $\frac{1}{2}$ Leather and Duck styles have been provided with a patent finger tip which Librarians speak of very highly. When a book is taken from the shelf, any one is liable to loosen the back, but with our improvement this is impossible, as the top part is firm and strong as the board, and the bottom does not rub on the shelf; consequently the Binding and Book last much longer, and is cheaper in the end.
